EURASIACAT EXPERIENCES

Javier López is a master student from the University of Malaga who was awarded with a grant to study at HKUST (Hong Kong) thanks to EURASIACAT Project.

He is performing his final master project, coadvised by Profs. Yeung and Guerrero.

The main goal of this project is the development of light disinfection technology for hospitals by using LED light sources with different wavelengths to target multiples sites in the bacteria.

At this moment a patent application of the hand-held device and the lighting technology is being prepared. In addition, this student has participated in a call for fellowships financed by HKUST since his idea, due to the good results obtained with the Erasmus Mundus experience, is to continue his research career in HKUST.
